SANTA ANA RIVER BENEFICIAL USE SURVEY

The State of California is conducting a beneficial use survey of the Santa Ana River, from the Riverside to the Chino area. We are looking for dependable weekend volunteers to help conduct observational surveys of beneficial uses at several locations along the Santa Ana River. This year-long survey begins the weekend of June 21st, 2003 and the State will host a workshop for all participants. We would ask that volunteers participate on a long-term basis, at their convenience. For example, you may sign up to survey once a month for six months, or once a weekend for 3 months. As a volunteer, we ask that you commit to the survey dates that you volunteer for.

In addition to getting noteworthy field experience in the field of water quality, this is a great opportunity to find out about your local water resource management agencies. For more information, or if you would like to help with the observational surveys, please respond by May 27th to any one of the following people:
